CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS DE-CIDES THE EVICH CASE,

HOW THE LAD WAS DROWNED.

Judge Simonton, in Overruling the Decision of Judge Hughes, Reviews the Evidence to Show That the Glendale Was Not Responsible.

The opinion of the judges of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for this district in the case of Philip B. Evich, administrator of Joseph Evich, deceased against the steam tug Glendale and its owners, the Freeman Brothers, which, as announced in the Dispatch of Sunday, has reversed the decree of Judge Hughes, rendered in the United States District Court, was received here yesterday. The opinion was handed down in Baltimore and was written by Judge Simonton and concurred in by Judges Goff and Braw-The case was argued in Richmond

FACTS IN THE CASE. The facts of the case are stated as fol-

"The Glendale is a small tug, 41 feet long, 83-4 feet beam, propelled by steam, and engaged in towing in and about the James river. The intestate of the libellant was with his father, the libellant, and two other men, fishing with a seine in the James river between Richmond and Manchester, on the afternoon and evening of the 7th of June, 1896. On that evening the Glendale, proceeding down the river, came upon the small boat in which these persons had been fishing. When she came close to the boat Evich, the libellant, caught the rail of the tug and jumped out of his boat into the tug. One of the men, Coleman, took the boy. Joe Evich, by the hand and reached out and got on the tug. Somehow his grasp on the boy was loosened, so that the boy got away from him-probably was sucked nder the tug and was drowned. He was about 12 years old. The small boat had no light. It was about 14 feet long. about 5 feet wide in the centre, its greatest beam, pointed at the bow, with a square stern, and a flat bottom." NO EVIDENCE OF MALACE.

The above facts, the opinion states, are undisputed, but the question in the case is who was in fault for the sad accident? "The testimony is voluminous, the number of witnesses out of all proportion, and the evidence contradictory

The opinion then reviews at length all the testimony submitted, and then states the testimeny submitted, and then states that no evidence whatever is on record tending to show malice or bad feeling on the part of the tug-owners toward the libeliant, and continues: "There is conflict of evidence as to the distance at which objects could be seen that night. The accident occurred between 8 and 9 colors on a pight in June. The electricclock on a night in June. The electric lights on the banks of the river were lit. The master of the tug and other witnesses say that these lights made it difficult to see on the river, and that it was dark. The preponderance of the

The narration of the witnesses for Hellant is not credible," says the opin-ion, "unless the master of the tug was in a state of beastly intoxication. They say that the tug steered wildly, always toward them, in whichever direction they moved, with the apparent intention of running them down. And no motive whatever is shown for this. On the other hand, we find other witnesses, entirely disinterested, who swear that he was perfectly sober. We also find that at this very time he went about dness as towmaster, gave a co herent, intelligent instruction to the sandbarge, went and towed the Reand then finished his contract with the nd-barge, to the satisfaction of both. That he had all his lights up; that he had a lookout forward, and as soon as he had notice of the danger of collision, took prompt and successful precaution. It is absurd to say that he collided with the small boat at full If he had done so, he must have cut her in two, or have run her down. There is great conflict of evi-dence on the point whether the boat was hurt at all. One thing is certain, she was able to carry three grown men ashore after the accident, and that two of these got back in her from choice.

EVIDENTLY LOST THEIR HEADS. "Evidently the men in the small boat of keeping on the Chesterfield side, where they were, they undertook to cross the river after they saw the tug coming, when she was 300 yards or 150 yards away. Having no light on her, a small boat low in the water, it was not surprising that she was not seen until the tug was very near, and when she was seen the tug controlled her movements so completely that two men only on the small boat could catch hold of her rail and get on board. "This small boat had no light, although it was long after sunset. Section 4233, Revised Statutes of the United States, Rule 12, requires such boats to have a light whilst navigating a river. This being so, it was incumbent on libeliant to show that the absence of a light could not have contributed to the disaster. (Belden vs. Chase, 150 U. S., 674. Where fault on the part of one vessel is established by uncontradicted testimony, and such fault in itself is sufficient to account for the disaster, it is not enough for such vessel to raise a doubt with regard to the management of the other vessel.

"Considering this mass of testimony, and reconciling, as far as possible, the contradiction in it, having due regard to the preponderance of evidence when it is ponderance of evidence when it is cliable, we think that the District OTHER DECISIONS.

NO WAY TO CARRY THEM,

Visitors to Dover Association Must Provide Their Own Conveyances. The Baptist ministers of Richmond and Manchester held their weekly conference yesterday morning at the First church. Rev. Dr. William E. Hatcher, the president, was out of the city, having gone to Caroline to conduct a meeting, but there was quite a good attendance. Rev. Dr. Stifler, who is supplying the Second church pulpit, was among the visitors.

The greatest part of the session was taken up in discussing arrangements for the approaching session of Dover As-sociation, to be held at Walnut-Grove church, beginning the 29th. Rev. Dr. Charles H. Ryland, pastor of the church, Charles H. Ryland, pastor of the church, made a statement of the wishes and plans of the church, with reference to the entertainment of delegates and visitors. He said the church would make ample provision for all who came in their own conveyances, but that being a country church and the people being busy truckers, no arrangement could be made for carrying persons back and forth either from the city or from the forth, either from the city or from the church, to the homes of the perple. While at the church and during their stay in the homes of the people, the most ordial hospitality will be given. He requested the pastors to be careful to say this, and especially to emphasize that the church wishes a good delegation and a happy, useful meeting, "Comin your own conveyance, and a pleasant home awaits you," said the good pastor "but do not encourage those to come who expect the church to haul then
